Subject of the website.

A hub website to group many types of Lightsabers available across the internet.

Audience

Anyone who wants to find lightsabers to buy in general but want also many options.

What I hope to accomplish

I like to have as much personalization as I can, especially when I want to find something very specific. The purpose of the site is to provide a place for people like this.

Design

I wanted to have a space styled website, so the main idea was to have space backgrounds and the colors I chose for the site. The logo and other things mirror the colors of the lightsabers, and the banners are designed inspired by scrolling apps like TikTok. For the filter, I wanted a filter page, full of options that would lead to exactly what you're looking for.

What I've learned and how this will help me in the future?

Mostly, I've learned that if you want to put some feature on your site, really know what you're doing, and that HTML and CSS are flexible and full of possibilities. I feel my imagination is the limit, and there are many ways to design your ideas into a website. These skills will help me a lot in the future specially because HTML, CSS and JavaScript can be used to make many more things than just websites.
